“JOHN GROW, VE2EQL ON QRP COMMUNICATIONS”

Wednesday 26 March 2003

Ragchew and Fleamarket: 19:30

Club meeting: 20:00

St. Ignatius of Loyola Parish Church

4455 West Broadway (corner of Terrebonne) in N.D.G. - Montreal

John Grow, VE2EQL will be giving a talk on QRP, (low power stations) and on an exciting upcoming event, Atlanticon 2003. Atlanticon 2003 is a QRP Forum held in Baltimore, this year on March 28 and 29. QRP is a challenging aspect of the hobby, trying to communicate using a very minimum of power. John will be driving down to Baltimore with APRS, and will be also show us how we can track his progress as he is in transit. This practical talk should make for a very informative and fun evening.

A WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT

Hello,

At our last meeting we enjoyed an interesting talk given by Sheldon Harvey, VE2SHW, about radio monitoring. As many of you know Sheldon has been very active over the years actively promoting and explaining radio and amateur radio to the general public. Sheldon has also been active in other areas including the Montreal DX Listeners' Net which he recently retired from managing after nearly ten years.

During his talk Sheldon issued a challenge which I think we all need to consider. We each need to do what we can to encourage newcomers into our hobby. This encouragement can take many forms. Amateur radio has a long tradition of mentoring those less experienced in the hobby and one member recently approached me with the idea that we should try to encourage our more experienced members to provide guidance and assistance to the new members of our hobby. We do need more Elmers.

There are two elements which are required to ensure the success of any organization. The older experienced members and the young and enthusiastic ones. Together they are an unbeatable combination. Why not consider pitching in, even once a year, to help your fellow ham? Do you know someone who needs help working on an antenna? Perhaps you know someone who is trying to understand a subject you know well. Perhaps you could lend your experience to a communications event or man a promotional display and educate the public about our hobby.

I am one person who believes that amateur radio has a bright future ahead of it. That future may not happen if we don't recruit and encourage our new comers. This year's Basic Qualification class has eight students who are all interested and motivated and I look forward to their joining the ranks of amateur radio. This is one challenge we need to rise to and ensure that not only do people know what amateur radio is but that we provide every encouragement to enjoy with us this wonderful pastime.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

A reminder that the club's hamfest is fast approaching. So make a date for Saturday morning, April 12 to come out and support the M.A.R.C. hamfest. Its the perfect opportunity to catch up on the news with old friends, perhaps make a few new friends, and maybe exchange a few tips on what and where to listen as events are unfolding. Bring a friend and introduce them around.

We also still have some tables available so if you need a table or two, or know anybody who does please contact Jim Hay who will be pleased to take your order. We also need a some people to help run the hamfest. So if you can contribute some time again contact Jim Hay.

Thanks to Sheldon Harvey, VE2SHW for his informative talk on "Monitoring Hotspots on Shortwave." This timely and interesting talk with the world events currently unfolding the way they are should prove very valuable to those who like to monitor radio and as well as providing an opportunity to show our friends and neighbours a little bit of what our hobby is about. Sheldon also passed on a few links which might be of interest, including:
